

Nazareth Boy Drowns While Swimming At Saylor's Lake

Paul Broutin Loses Life On Holiday Outing

PAUL BROUTIN, 17, of Nazareth RD1, drowned in Saylor's Lake yesterday afternoon.

Stroudsburg State police investigated the incident. Dr. Charles Rushmore, Monroe County coroner, said last night that a post-mortem will be conducted this morning.

State troopers Emil Weber and Joseph F. Murphy were in charge of the police investigation. Their report shows the following details:

Disappeared Near Raft
At about 1:10 p.m. Broutin and five friends were swimming in the lake. They were swimming back and forth from the lake dock to a raft near the center of the body of water.

At a point about five feet from the raft, Broutin disappeared, police said. The water at that point measured 21 feet deep, Weber and Murphy said.

Two lake lifeguards, Warren Burnard and George Edwards, immediately began searching for Broutin, police said. The search was unsuccessful.

At about 2 p.m., with the aid of grappling hooks, the body was found by two Allentown men—Charles DeWalt and Elwood Richard. Efforts to revive Broutin by artificial respiration and inhalation were futile, police said.

Oxygen Administered
The Lookout Fire Dept., of Pen Argyl, administered oxygen from its inhalation equipment. A physician—Dr. J. A. Turzot of Pen Argyl—was also on the scene, police said.

Dr. Rushmore said Dr. Turzot pronounced Broutin dead after efforts to revive him failed. An autopsy will be conducted this morning, Dr. Rushmore said, and an official death certificate will then be issued.

Nearly half a hundred volunteers aided State police in the search for Broutin's body. Weber and Murphy said. Among them were the members of the fire department and the 801st Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol.

The CAP detachment was at Saylor's Lake on an outing, police said. Supervised by Lt. John Bartholomew, the Allentown unit patrolled the area and helped keep the large crowd back from the lake front, police reported.

24 Men In Unit
The CAP members also assisted by rowing boats in the area where Broutin had last been seen, police said. There were 24 men in the unit at the lake.

The body of the youth was removed to Dunkelberger and Westbrook funeral home, Stroudsburg. Broutin was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Broutin, Nazareth RD1. He was employed as a cement mixer at Lehigh Brick Face Co. in Allentown.

His death was the second fatality reported in the Monroe County area over the Memorial Day weekend. James Shellenberger, 19, of Delaware Water Gap, was crushed to death when he fell beneath the wheels of a loaded coal truck Friday night.

Broutin is survived by his parents; two brothers, Homer Jr. and Dennis George, both at home and his maternal grandfather, George Brouter, Nazareth.

The family moved to Nazareth from the Pittsburgh area in 1954.

Tito, Soviets Resume Talks

FAZANO Yugoslavia, May 30 (P)—President Tito and the leaders of Russia resumed their talks today in strict secrecy on the secluded Adriatic island of Brioni only a few hundred yards from the small coastal town.

There was no word on what points were involved in the talks, which were suspended in Belgrade two days ago.

Russian sources predicted some sort of agreement will be reached that will materially improve Soviet-Yugoslav relations. But authoritative Yugoslav sources say Tito has rejected Soviet plans for his country's immediate return to the Eastern bloc, or any proposal that Yugoslavia accept a role of "passive coexistence" on the international scene.

Nikita S. Khrushchev, boss of the Soviet Communist party; Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan, a trade expert, are the big guns for Russia in the talks.

Philanthropist Schock Dies

MOUNT JOY, Pa., May 30 (P)—Clarence Schock, 89, founder and president of an independent oil distributing firm and widely known for his philanthropic gifts to education, died today at his home.

Schock, as president of Sico Co., announced in 1940 the establishment of a trust fund to receive all profits from the company for the use of Lancaster city and county schools. Since that time, the gifts have amounted to more than one third of a million dollars, in addition to 126 scholarships intended to encourage the training of future teachers.

Four Miraculously Escape Electrocuting As Power Line Falls On Car During Storm

THREE LOCAL WOMEN and a man miraculously escaped death Sunday night when a storm-snapped power line turned their car into a 4400-volt electrocution chamber.

The incident occurred during Sunday night's furious wind and rain-storm near Glen Brook Country Club. According to Mrs. Thomas Kintner, 65, of 613 Fulmer Ave., Stroudsburg, a car owned and driven by her daughter, Gertrude, 44, same address, was traveling toward Glen Brook from Stroudsburg.

In the car were Mrs. Kintner, her husband, Thomas, their daughter and Mrs. Earl Baird, 65, of East Stroudsburg.

Lightning Hits Tree
Mrs. Kintner said the occupants of the car had seen the approaching storm and were "looking for a place to turn around and go back home" when "all of a sudden lightning hit a tree near us."

Exactly what happened next, Mrs. Kintner could not say. All she knew at the time was that "blue smoke was rolling up all around us and there were blue and white sparks shooting all about from the back of the car."

Firemen and power company linemen said this is what happened: Half of a maple tree alongside the road fell across power lines. A 4400-volt primary line was snapped. It was this line which fell across the rear of the Kintner car.

"Awful Shock"
Mrs. Kintner told the Daily Record last night that she immediately began trying to get out of the vehicle. When she put her hand on the metal door handle, she "got an awful shock," but she succeeded in getting the door open.

All four occupants of the car scrambled out to safety. When power linemen arrived they climbed the pole and cut the power line off.

Examination of the car showed that holes had been burned through the metal "just as though you had taken an acetylene torch and made them," according to John Parker, Stroud Township Volunteer Fire Co. spokesman. The fire company was called to the scene but was not required to go into action.

Missed Gas Tank
The burned holes—along the fender, trunk and bumper area in the rear of the car—narrowly missed the gasoline tank in the car.

None of the four persons in the car was injured, Mrs. Kintner said. Power company workmen told the group "it was a miracle" that they had lived through the episode, she said, and she was inclined to agree.

Assembly Starts Sixth Month
HARRISBURG, May 30 (P)—Pennsylvania legislators — only a pen-sweep away from a $100-a-month increase in their expense allowances—move tomorrow into the sixth month of their current session still seeking to solve the Commonwealth's fiscal woes.

Gov. Leader is expected to act late this week on a bi-partisan measure granting the lawmakers an increase from $1,800 to $3,000 a year for expenses.

The bill, passed by House and Senate with little opposition, also would automatically double to $6,000 a biennial the salaries of senators and representatives should annual sessions be approved finally.

Stiff Wind Handicap
Sweikert, whose new Offenhauser powered Kurtis-Kraft was painted tropical rose and white, said a stiff wind made the race "twice as hard" as usual and sometimes made the cars jump six feet.

The 28-year-old Californian turned Hoosier, competing in his home-town's big race for the fourth time, blamed the wind for a spin by Roger Ward of Los Angeles that started the big pile-up. It was the worst smash up in the race since seven cars jammed up in a nonfatal accident in 1930.

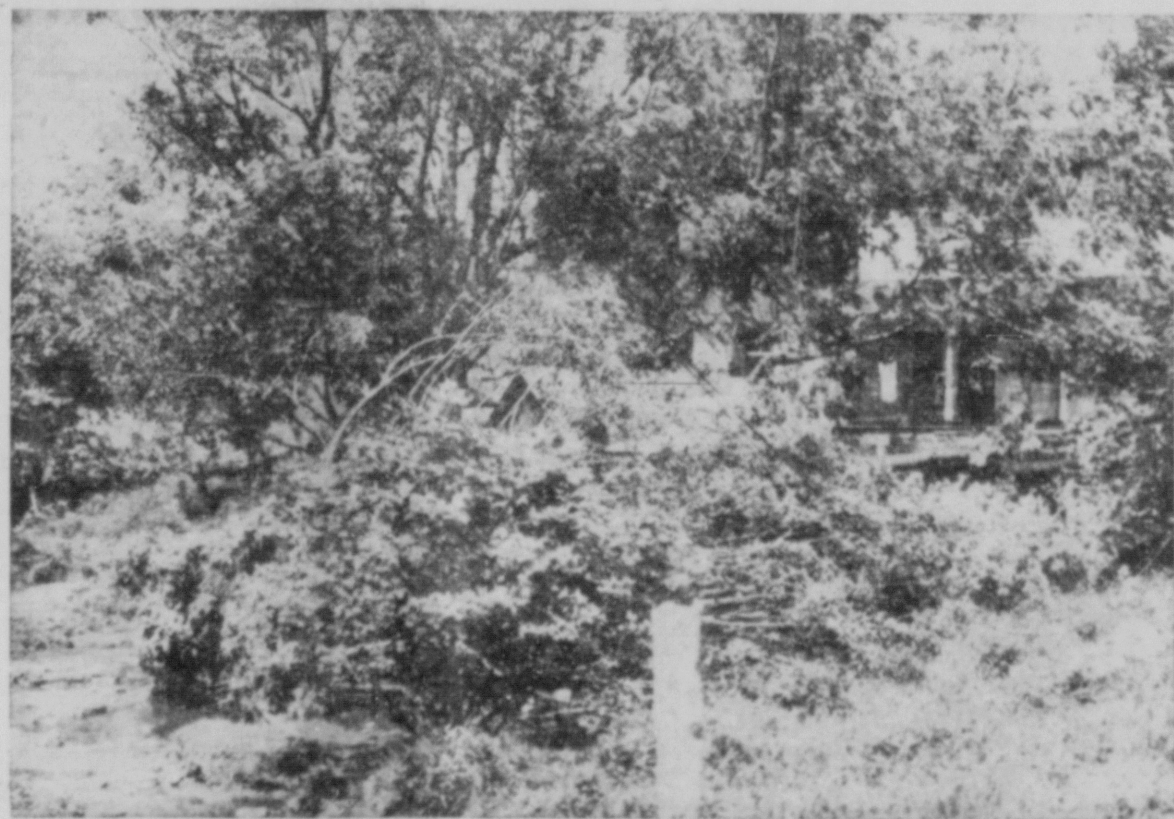

El Ellisian of Oakland, Calif., and Al Keller of Green Acres, Fla., whipped their cars into the infield to miss Ward, but Johnny Boyd of Fresno, Calif., hit the retaining wall.

Vukovich, who had led 50 of the first 56 laps, tried to miss the (Please turn to Page 13)

Strike Perils British Economy

LONDON, May 30 (P)—A nationwide rail strike overshadowed the sunshine of booming Britain's Whitsun Day holiday today. It threatened a quick—if temporary—slide to the austerity of the post-war years.

Scores of thousands of holiday-makers were stranded at coast resorts. They basked in the best weather of the year, apparently counting on hitchhiking to get them home.

TWISTED BY a twister which swept up at the Homer Singer farm west of Reeders early Sunday night, these two big trees were dropped, taking with them electrical service. A fourth large tree was downed nearby and a small silo adjacent the Singer barn was flattened. Mrs. Singer was only a few feet away when the silo tumbled. (Staff Photo by Cerlito)

Doctors Asked To Cooperate In Polio Plan

CHICAGO, May 30 (P)—The American Medical Assn. announced today it has asked its members to cooperate in a voluntary government priority plan for polio inoculations of children 5 through 9 and "the vaccination program will move ahead."

Dr. Walter B. Martin of Norfolk, Va., president of the AMA, said "the AMA has been assured that the safe manufacture of polio vaccine have been worked out, and the vaccination program will move ahead."

In a statement released through AMA Chicago headquarters, Dr. Martin said "the rechecking of manufacturing procedures and laboratory data following the outbreak of polio in a few vaccinated children has caused unavoidable delay."

Commends Eisenhower
"In the midst of such tension, the Eisenhower administration is to be commended for conducting a careful and scientific review of the entire situation before permitting continuance of the program."

"In behalf of myself and the AMA board of trustees, I have assured President Eisenhower that the nation's physicians will cooperate in limiting polio vaccination to children from five through nine until the vaccine is available in larger supply."

Dr. Martin said "children in this age group who do not receive the vaccine during the current program of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for first and second graders will be vaccinated after its completion."

C47 Crash Kills Five

ALAMOGORDO, N. M., May 30 (P)—A two-engine Air Force C47 crashed today in the Sacramento Mountains 29 miles northeast of here. Holloman Air Force Base officials said all five men aboard were killed in the flaming crash.

SANDWICHED IN BETWEEN housework, raising families and careers, are the jobs these women—and dozens of others like them—do for the Red Cross Blood Bank. Each time the mobile unit visits this area, canteen workers make 400 or more sandwiches the night before. Each donor gets a sandwich, a glass of fruit juice and a cup of coffee. The job is typical of the work done by other volunteers in other ways. All in all, more than 50 persons spend two weeks solid work in preparation for a Blood Bank. (Staff Photo by Randolph)

60-MPH Gusts Flatten Trees, Bringing Down Utility Wires

MAY'S HEAVIEST RAIN-STORM cracked a rough drought situation somewhat early Sunday night, but really roughed up utility services in the region, largely in the Delaware Valley watershed area.

Two power companies, the telephone company and TV relay in the Stroudsburg took a beating and required hours of holiday repair work to clear up difficulties. High, gale-force and often semi-cyclonic winds which ripped down trees and tree limbs were the big problem.

Bell Telephone Co. officials said at one time 1,100 "positions" were out of service, but by early last night they had been all restored because outside crews were rushed here to cope with the situation.

Metropolitan Edison had damage sweeping from Saylorburg to Milford, which they had restored by early last night.

Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. officials said they had some 3,500 customers out of service "at the peak" of the storm because of breaks in primary wires of varied voltages all over the region. Utilizing construction crews, PP&L started right after the storm and cleaned up their problems late yesterday afternoon.

Trees Chiefly at Fault
There was unanimity among utility services—high winds whipping trees or tree limbs to cause most of the damage.

The wind reached a velocity of 60 miles an hour for about five minutes at Mount Pocono, according to Harry E. Greene, weather observer there. He said rainfall was a meager 43-hundredth of an inch, much of which ran off immediately because the parched earth was too hard to absorb the water.

Greatest wind velocity in the region was recorded in the vicinity of Easton and Allentown. The strong gust stirred up huge clouds of dust as they whipped across dry fields.

Pierre Lake, Stroudsburg weatherman, said about three-tenths of an inch of rain fell during the Sunday night storm. That measurement, coupled with 11-hundredths on May 8 and 20-hundredths on May 23, set up a total rainfall for

Reports In India Hint 11 Others May Be Released

TOKYO, Tuesday, May 31 (P)—Red China disclosed last night a decision to release "immediately" four U. S. air-men of the Korean War, one a double ace.

Conceivably they could emerge from more than two years in prison to freedom at any time since the decision actually was reached a week ago.

Peiping radio said a military tribunal convicted them May 24 of "intruding" over Manchuria during the Korean War, then ordered them "deported immediately."

The U. S. State Department promptly expressed hope the action signalled plans by Red China to free 11 other U. S. fliers, held as convicted "espionage agents," and 41 American civilians.

New Delhi reports suggested that release of the other 11 fliers might well be in the offing.

Speculation here on where the four might emerge took in both Hong Kong and Pannunjom, Korea. Pannunjom is the 38th Parallel town where Korean prisoners of war were exchanged. A transfer of the four there by train from Peiping would take more time.

The U. S. Air Force and American Red Cross made preparations at Hong Kong — just in case.

Four Named
The four ordered freed: Capt. Harold Fischer Jr., 28, of Svea City, Iowa; a double ace by virtue of bagging 10 Red MIGs on 66 Sabre jet missions; shot down April 7, 1953.

Lt. Col. Edwin L. Heller, 36, Wynnewood, Pa., credited with 3½ MIGs (sharing one with another flier) during the Korean War and 19½ German planes in World War II; shot down Jan. 23, 1953.

Lt. Roland W. Parks, 24, Omaha, Neb.; shot down Sept. 4, 1952, on his 59th Korean mission.

Lt. Lyle W. Cameron, Lincoln, Neb., shot down Oct. 16, 1952, while on a strafing mission near the Korean-Manchuria border.

Stores Differ
Peiping radio said all four were captured inside Manchuria. U. S. military authorities said that all four were downed in North Korea while on missions near the border.

U. N. airmen were under orders in the Korean War not to cross the Korean border. U. N. officers explained that many sky fights were so close to the border it would have been possible for a falling plane or parachute to have drifted across the Yalu River into Manchuria.

Peiping radio said the four were shown "leniency" because they were "only carrying out the orders of the U. S. military authorities" in allegedly bombing and strafing Manchuria.

Red China takes the position that its Communist soldiers who fought in Korea were "volunteers" and that Manchuria, therefore, was immune to attack as a neutral country.

Red Charges
Peiping's broadcast said the four airmen were convicted "of imperiling the security of our country and undermining the peaceful life of our people."

The broadcast text of the military tribunal said nothing about why so much time elapsed between the four's capture and their trial.

The decision came at a time when reports were growing of possible negotiations between Red China and the United States over the Formosan situation.

Before Peiping announced the decision, word that it was expected came from New Delhi.

V. K. Krishna Menon, Indian foreign policy adviser who recently conferred in Peiping with Chinese officials, said the four men would be freed as a move toward easing tension in the Far East.

The U. S. State Department, in welcoming the news about the four, said release of the others "would eliminate one cause of international tension."

Traffic Falls Below Normal For Holiday

TRAFFIC was under a restraining influence into the Pocono Mountains via one of its major gateways—the Delaware Water Gap toll bridge—during the four-day holiday.

In fact, the first three days—Friday, Saturday and Sunday—showed the count as they do it on the bridge to be 4,450 "axes off" the same three days last year. That was at 4 p. m. and by 8:30 p. m. there wasn't the slightest indication there would be even a partial recovery of this loss in "axle" movement.

For the first two days—Friday and Saturday—the bridge traffic load was "off 1,230 axes", making the Sunday drop some 3,220.

There was a lot of guessing as to the cause—most of the second guess variety by traffic observers.

Possible Reasons

Most popular reasons included—last year the bridge was still a big novelty and probably attracted a lot of casual "regional sight-seeing" travel; and, the traffic jams which caught so many people so frequently at Stroudsburg dulled the motorists with that long memory from coming into the region via the bridge and Route 611.

Whatever the reason, the traffic total was down on the Delaware Water Gap bridge, and the deficit over last year was a long way from being "made up" by traffic up to a late hour last night.

Community Marks Memorial Holiday

Christine Speaks At Ceremony

AMERICANS should not let Communist perversion of the meanings of common words to cause them to drop those words from their own language or change them, Elmer D. Christine told a Memorial Day audience yesterday.

Speaking at the grave of Clarence Strunk, a veteran of World War One, Christine, who is judge advocate general of the National Veterans of Foreign Wars and an East Stroudsburg attorney, noted that some pressure has been brought by groups to cause the word "comrade" to be dropped from U. S. usage.

"Some people have the idea that Americans should not use the word 'comrade' because it is a term associated with Communism," Christine said. "That is an interesting argument. It is just the type of reasoning—if we can call it reasoning—that the Communists themselves encourage as part of their propaganda campaign against us."

"The word comrade has always been part of the English language. It was adopted by the Communists in 1917," he continued. "Our dictionaries define comrade as meaning: A companion, associate, mate, one who is closely allied with others in interests and efforts. Also—one who shares fortunes with another as in a dangerous adventure."

Interests Closely Related

"Comradeship is particularly descriptive of the relationship between men in armed forces because their vocation is a dangerous one. During times of peace those men refer to one another as comrades because their interests and efforts in behalf of peace are closely allied."

"The Communists, on the other hand, apply the word comrade only to members of the Communist Party—an organization of restricted membership inflicting oppression, brutality and slavery upon millions of people who are not permitted to belong to the party. The word comrade means one thing to the Communist and something quite different to the non-Communist."

"If the Communist use of the word comrade is a logical basis for our banning the word, then, by the same line of reasoning, we must likewise eliminate from our vocabulary such words as God, democracy, equality, freedom, truth and a score of other terms for which we and the Communists have opposing definitions. That, of course, raises the question—how silly can we get?"

"Elimination of comrade from our vocabulary simply because the word is used by the Communists would be an act of blind hysteria, rather than good reasoning. If we are to ban all words to which the Communists apply their own connotation, we would very quickly strike ourselves dumb for the lack of words," Christine said.

Communist Trickery

"One very effective bit of Soviet trickery is to attach Communist usage to our words, throw them back at us and muddle our original understanding of the words. . . . If we are to eliminate all such words, the result will be chaotic. At the same time it would certainly reflect strong, favorable light upon Communist ingenuity and leadership," he said.

"Our war veterans since 1776 have been comrades fighting shoulder to shoulder against the enemies of American liberty. They have been comrades in their peacetime services to American communities and through their united interests and efforts in behalf of our national welfare."

"Comradeship has always been a mighty, powerful force of our entire citizenry working together as one—for greater freedoms and opportunities in democracy. (Please turn to Page 9)

Polio Vaccine Program, Now Under Way Again, No Place For Rumormongers

It now appears the anti-polio vaccine program will go ahead—we hope, from here on out, in an orderly fashion.

The Government has set up a new set of standards for checking safety of the vaccine—which indicates its previous hurried standards were something less than perfect.

And a committee of distinguished scientists, including Dr. Jonas Salk, will pass on the vaccine, batch by batch, before it is distributed.

The end result of this action, as we see it from a non-scientific viewpoint, is twofold: That the manufacture of the vaccine now has been put on a higher safety level, and that the delay has served a useful purpose, despite the confusion.

The main point is that whatever was faulty with the vaccine was in no way traceable to the Salk formula. It was simply a quirk in the manufacturing process of one concern in two lots of the vaccine.

Much, no doubt, could be said about the causes and effects of these last four weeks of confusion. But the job is to restore public confidence and get on with the program. To this end, we hope there will be no more—Wild Eyed Rumors—such as the one Congressman Arthur Klein of New York threw out at a House hearing.

Mr. Klein claimed he had information from “a very reputable source” that a “very, very prominent politician from California” had used his influence with the Government in behalf of the Cutter Laboratories, source of the two lots of suspected vaccine.

It turned out Mr. Klein’s “very reputable” source was a Congressman from Virginia who simply had heard a rumor, from a broadcast which deals in rumors. The Virginia Congressman, J. Vaughan Gary of Richmond, merely had passed along the story—purely as rumor—because it might be something the committee of which Mr. Klein was a member would wish to check.

The polio vaccine program is no place for giddy tales.

Pennsylvania's Milk Control Laws, Depression-Born, Useless Measures Now

Pennsylvania's Milk control law originally was enacted more than 20 years ago, in depression times, to assure an adequate supply of milk to the public by assuring the farmer of a fair price for his product.

That end was accomplished, but we never got rid of the law after the need for it had passed. As a result, we're stuck with a law which sets rigid price levels for the ultimate consumer. And the operation of the law hasn't helped increase the consumption of this most desirable of foods.

The price is the same whether you buy one quart or 20 quarts. It's the same whether you're buying it a bottle at a time or on yearly contracts for huge amounts. No discount for quantity; no discount for steady customers.

State hospitals and state-aided hospitals all pay the going rate specified by the State Milk Control Commission. But U. S. Veterans' hospitals, not bound by the state law, get their milk by contract on competitive bidding, and at much lower prices.

This silly state of affairs can be remedied if the Legislature will consider a bill proposed by State Sen. Elmer J. Holland. This bill would permit state institutions and all other non-profit or charitable hospitals, homes and institutions to buy their milk on competitive bids.

Such a move wouldn't hurt the milk business. It would help the hard-pressed hospitals by enabling them to cut their milk costs, and it would help the patients by getting milk to them at cheaper cost.

There are many things that should be done about our milk price control system, if we continue to keep it. An exemption for hospitals, homes and other institutions would seem to be one of the first reforms. If we can take wise steps to get more milk into more people, we'll be helping everybody, including the dairyman.

Zoot Suit Makes Appearance In London, Worn By Gangsters Known As Teddy Boys

London — The zoot suit has made its appearance in London, and those who wear them are called Teddy boys. Such a queer name comes to them because actually the zoot suit was worn in early Edwardian days: tight trousers, long coats, shirts with ruffles, brilliantly fancy waist-coats and a feminine devotion to the hair.

Unfortunately many of the Teddy boys are gangsters and killers and their dress is a uniform. Others are only imitators. Those I saw did not look so terrible, but a switch knife can do as much mischief in an Edwardian masquerade as in a Bronx gang fight.

The British police are not as tough as ours, carry no guns or nightsticks and are accustomed to an orderly people who take them seriously. The Teddy boys do not take the police seriously because the sentences meted out to them are light by any standards. This is one vice which cannot be laid to the American movies. If any American dressed like one of these Teddy boys, he would be razed off the sidewalks and the likelihood is that someone would take a poke at him. British freedom, however, does not intervene in matters of personal taste.

I watched a few of these Teddy boys cavorting and one can only hope that they are not what they seem to be, because they do occasionally kill if interfered with. I like a gangster to look like one, ferocious and tough. A zoot-suit never made anyone look tough. It only makes him look untidy.

These boys are not a product of war. They are just bad boys. They are not a result of under-privilege; for too many years in England everybody was under-privileged. They are a product of some wild idea of the upper crust that was aped by these kids. In England juvenile delinquency exists and it has its own form and is clothed in an Edwardian zoot suit. Frankly, it looks awful.

Maybe the appearance of these gangs is a reaction to British orderliness. It is a voluntary orderliness. There are not enough nor modern efficient agencies to maintain law and order. It is a laissez-faire sort of thing, depending upon the individual more than upon the police. Maybe these zoot-suited kids just want to be disorderly because they are tired of every Englishman doing his duty. That too can be a bore.

I use an electric razor and so I looked for a plug in the bathroom where most Americans shave to the tune of a running shower. There was no plug.

I rang for the valet who, I assumed, looked after such things. He hurriedly got a transformer to fix the voltage but he plugged it into the bedroom wall next to a lad's dressing-table which no

Mothers, fathers, churchmen, civic workers, juvenile delinquency workers and others terribly concerned about the lessons children get from blurb printed criminal routines in the movies, obtain little comfort from Eric Johnston. In his answer to widening pleas for a hand in the fight to save the kids, in his first statement in months, the film czar himself seems to adopt a routine of violence, swinging with both fists at all hopes for support, breaking a chair over the head of organized church criticism and using the jagged bottle on the widely held idea that some valiant co-operation from his office would be welcome around the old homestead.

Eric, after declaring he is “not answering anybody” (which takes in home and church), jumps from the balcony to the chandelier and, swinging from it, kicks the teeth out of critics with “There will be no criticisms made to anybody or any group.” Then he leaps through the plate-glass window onto his pinto pony with a cry of “The movies are more attuned to public opinion THAN ANY OTHER MEDIA.”!!! Rough as are the scenes in hundreds of family-trade pictures, even the characters who get stomped on, beaten up and bullet-riddled in the cinema thrillers are left less groggy than the critics of Mr. Johnston. You would almost think Eric, intending to read a public statement, had picked up a script of “Run for Cover” by mistake.

Mom and Pop, hoping for encouragement in the battle for their children's welfare, were left battered and groggy under the overturned table and the furniture wreckage by the Johnston interview, and are just now managing to crawl out and grope for bandages. Generation Has Almost Specialized Too Much

It is ironic that a generation that has put high premiums on specialization has all but specialized itself into a corner behind the eight-ball.

“In the last two decades,” says Gilbert W. Chapman, a leading industrialist, “man's knowledge of the forces of nature has increased faster than during the previous 500,000 years of his existence. No one can master the whole of human knowledge.”

Throughout a great realm of subjects, from theoretical physics to psychology, from electronics to social research, from metallurgy to marketing, we find specialists who are understood only by their colleagues. Despite the fact that literacy has increased, each individual's ignorance has also increased. The ideal of the completely informed man, cherished by the ancient Greeks, would seem to be impossible of attainment.

That's a fair diagnosis of the world's basic ailment these days. A fair indication of how far we have succumbed to the disease is that the remedy prescribed by Mr. Chapman, along with a good many others who are worried about the situation, is to put more emphasis on developing another type of specialist—the specialist in generalities.

“Leading corporations have found,” he says, “that young people, no matter how brilliantly qualified they may be in technical specialties, do not qualify as leaders unless, to put it simply, they are broadly educated. As a consequence, new emphasis is placed on liberal arts education.”

In other words, since it has become almost impossible for anybody to know all there is to know about anything, we must fall back on those who know a little bit about everything.

Far be it from me to deprecate the liberal arts approach to education, but somehow I have my misgivings about that solution. A smattering of knowledge in all fields often comes in handy to a quiz-show contestant but it doesn't seem quite the sort of background that would justify complete confidence in a leader.

The problems with which a leader has to deal are apt to be specific problems. He needs to know a lot about one thing today and a lot about something else tomorrow. Otherwise he is more likely than not to lead his followers into a succession of blind alleys. His knowledge in any one field may never be as fresh and comprehensive as it needs to be to handle a specific situation that crops up in that field.

I have greater hopes for the solution suggested some years ago by Dr. Vannevar Bush. He predicted that the next important advances of science would be in the field of organizing the total fund of human knowledge so it could be used more intelligently. He envisioned complex machines which, at the push of a button, would lay in anybody's lap all the information to be had on any given subject.

By the way, how are those machines coming along?

Try and Stop Me —by Bennet Cerf

One of the funniest mishaps occurred during rehearsals of an old Bolton and Wodehouse musical at the late lamented Century Theatre. It then had the biggest revolving stage in the country.

A tenor who called himself “The Neapolitan Nightingale” showed up for an audition. He launched into “Ridi Pagliacci” when the revolving stage suddenly started and swept him into the wings.

“Why he didn't jump off, or at least stop singing,” laughs Bolton, “we'll never know. Maybe he sang with his eyes closed. Maybe he thought the spinning turntable was part of his tryst. At any rate, he suddenly popped into view at the other end of the stage, singing lustily and, after being seen briefly, whirled off on his second journey ending the song out of sight, back of the scenery, to hilarious cheers. Unfortunately, the part was cut out of the show and the Neapolitan Nightingale got nothing for his pains but a magnificent run-around.”

President Seeks Divine Guidance On Decisions

Washington, May 30 — An assistant of President Eisenhower tells a moving story of his praying for divine guidance in making fateful policy decisions.

In one instance, the President prayed for such help in his office.

Source of this intimate picture of the President is Fred A. Seaton, a leading member of the White House staff. Prior to becoming an administrative assistant there, the Nebraska newspaper publisher served an appointive term in the Senate, was an Assistant Secretary of Defense, and in 1952 accompanied the President throughout his campaign as itinerary director.

Seaton referred to the President's religious approach to the great public problems confronting him in an extemporaneous talk to a group of fellow fraternity members.

Recent partisan aspersions on the President's church-going, Seaton asserted, are wholly without foundation. The President is sincerely religious, and worships with deep reverence and devotion. As an illustration, Seaton related the following dramatic incident:

“One of the President's assistants walked into his office unannounced. He has authority to do that on urgent matters when the President is not otherwise engaged. The assistant entered quietly and, to his astonishment, found the President on his knees in silent prayer by his desk.

“The assistant was profoundly embarrassed and immediately turned to leave. At that instant the President rose and noticed him. The assistant started to apologize, but the President told him it wasn't necessary.

“Then as the assistant delivered the important message he was carrying, the President quietly explained that he was making a crucial decision that could mean peace or war in the Far East and had prayed for divine guidance to choose the right course. The President had turned to God for help in this hour of momentous decision.”

Note: A bi-partisan senatorial Bible study group is planning to invite the President to attend one of their breakfasts. The senators meet in the Capitol for Bible readings and discussions, and the President has evinced keen interest in their gatherings.

A pointed hint of this potential veterans' dilemma was dropped during the House fight. It occurred in a discussion between Representatives Overton Brooks (D., La.) and James Van Zandt (R., Pa.), leading members of the Armed Services Committee which drafted the crucial legislation.

Their highly significant comments got no attention, but they are of direct moment to millions of veterans. Following is what these two authoritative legislators said:

Van Zandt: “Seventy-five percent of the men in the Army Reserve today are former servicemen; in the Naval Reserve, 52.8 percent; in the Marine Reserve, 81.9 percent; and in the Air Force Reserve, 82.8 percent.”

Brooks: “And what that adds up to is this: If there is another grave emergency, it will be necessary to take the same men who bore the brunt of battle in World War II and in Korea. That's what these figures mean.”

Van Zandt: “That is correct. You are one hundred percent right.”

Brooks: “If there is another national emergency, these veterans will be called up a third time.”

Van Zandt: “Yes, and it's not impossible that, should there be another war, some of us old-timers from World War I may be called back to active duty. That is entirely possible.”

Note: Representative Carl Vinson (D., Va.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, is privately predicting it will shortly send the stalled bill back to the House, which will approve it.

June Dairy Month Finds Sound Market

—by H. G. Heller

As milk producers and dealers prepare for June dairy month the dairy situation is reported showing a sounder foundation.

The Interstate Milk Producers Cooperative reports that national milk production is down a slight fraction from what it was a year ago.

Though seen as an encouraging factor by dairymen, the figures are still more than six percent above the five-year average for this time of year.

Meanwhile, the entire industry is girding to push milk sales beginning next week.

Purpose of the program is to channel more dairy foods into normal trade channels.

In Pennsylvania dairy production is still reported heavy, especially into the Philadelphia markets.

However, a gradual trend toward cutting back production has been detected in some areas.

One of the factors giving a hopeful outlook for the dairy industry are the concerted efforts of the federal government to cut back the vast stores on hand that were brought under price support programs.

Butter stocks are about 10 percent less than last year, but still well above the five-year average.

Price supports—which affect the Pennsylvania milk scene, though only a small quantity of the state's production goes into price supported products—are virtually the same as last year.

But the Philadelphia milkshed production since the first of the year has been about 10 percent over last year on a per farm per day basis, Interstate reports.

Bloodmobile Visit Entails Two Weeks Of Hard Work

IT TAKES TWO weeks of hard work by about 50 to 60 volunteers to put a Red Cross Bloodmobile visit "on the road."

Although no accurate total of the hours spent in getting ready for a bloodmobile is available, a moderate estimate would be from five to 20 hours of work by each of the volunteers.

Because the blood bank is a vital part of this community's free public service to its residents, The Daily Record asked LeRoy Mikels, chairman of the Red Cross Blood Donor program and Mrs. Ida Kunkle, executive secretary of the Red Cross, for a step-by-step account of what goes into making a visit by the mobile unit a reality.

Site Chosen

The first step, Mikels said, is to make contacts and find a place to hold the blood bank collection. Many times this site will be a local church, a veterans organization hall or a school house.

During the past two years, Mikels and Mrs. Kunkle have contacted, personally, at least half a hundred organizations, asking permission to hold the blood bank in their rooms.

Nearly always, the permission is granted. But, in an effort to give as many organizations as possible a chance to aid in the work, the Red Cross must constantly seek new community groups who wish to take part or sponsor a visit.

For today's Blood Bank visit, the site is the Tobyhanna Signal Depot, largest of its kind in the world. To get permission to bring the Bloodmobile to the depot, Mikels contacted both Col. Alfred H. Anderson, depot commander and Clyde Burke, public relations chief at the depot.

Both men gave their tentative approval to the plan on April 2, the day of Mikels' first visit to the depot. Col. Anderson and Burke then began contacting various members of the depot staff detailing the action to be taken in preparation for the visit.

Final approval was made on May 4. The bloodmobile's visit was set at Tuesday, May 31—today.

On Saturday, May 21, complete plans for the visit were worked out by Burke, Mikels and Louis DePaul, another depot official. On Monday, May 23, Burke called the Red Cross chapter office in Stroudsburg, outlining the needs of the depot in paving the way for a successful Bloodmobile visit.

Among the items needed: posters for placement in strategic locations throughout the depot; pledge cards to be filled out and signed by prospective donors. Quantities of both items were delivered to the depot that same day by Mikels.

Volunteer Helpers Busy

From the time the exact date of the blood bank visit was finally agreed upon until this morning, when the mobile unit begins collecting blood from donors, the major bulk of work falls back upon local volunteer workers.

These are the clerical staff assistants, the registered nurses, the nurses' aides, canteen workers and the Gray Ladies. Each of these groups donates thousands of hours—free of charge—each year to the Blood Bank program.

They work quietly, efficiently and without any hallyhoo (or credit) entirely. Like most behind-the-scenes workers, they have a devotion to duty which transcends all personal desire for credit.

It's not just a matter of saying "There's a blood bank Tuesday—we'll need five or ten workers" either. Because each one of the volunteers is giving up his or her time at home or at a job, the schedule has to be checked.

To get the desired number of workers, the woman or man in charge may have to make a dozen or more phone calls, asking each volunteer if she will be able to work with the mobile unit on the date of its visit.

Most of the time—unless previous commitments prevent it—the volunteers have learned to "drop everything" for the sake of the Blood Bank. Obviously, however, this cannot always be done.

For today's visit to the depot, for example, it took five phone calls to get enough volunteers for staff assistants. There were no refusals.

The volunteers in charge of recruiting registered nurses, however, had to make 38 phone calls over a period of three days to get the number of nurses needed for the blood bank.

In the case of registered nurses, Mrs. Kunkle comments, the marvelous part is that so many are ready and willing to contribute their time completely free of charge. The nurses are professional women, whose time is valuable and in constant demand.

They—like the other professional men and women such as doctors and trained technicians—are willing to give of their time and efforts only because they realize fully the immense value of the free blood bank program.

Nurses On Duty

Each time the blood bank pays a visit locally, 11 nurses are needed. Also required are four nurses' aides. It was necessary to make eight calls to get the required number of aides for today's visit.

An important part of each bloodmobile visit is the canteen. This free service offers sandwiches, fruit juice and coffee to each donor after he has given blood.

There is nothing "social" about the canteen. That sandwich and the cup of coffee are needed to help put the donor back to normalcy in rapid order. Most donors have taken time away from their jobs to give blood. They must, of necessity, return to those jobs immediately.

According to Mrs. Kunkle, the sandwich "helps to replenish the energy however slight, lost in the process of giving blood." To serve the sandwiches, make the coffee and distribute the juice, the canteen must have 14 volunteer workers. To get those 14 workers for today's visit, it was necessary to make 43 phone calls.

One volunteer group—the Gray Ladies—is always "on call." These women, whose work at Monroe County General Hospital information desk is a continuing, year-round, day-to-day service of the Red Cross, give of their time so freely that no Red Cross service gets by without them on the local area. To get the three Gray Ladies necessary for today's visit to the Depot only three calls were needed. All three women contacted said "yes" immediately.

Must Purchase Supplies

In addition to all these contacts, the Red Cross must also purchase—in large quantities—the food, bread, juices and coffee needed to operate the canteen during the visit. Shopping for the canteen is just like shopping for a family lunch—the same attention is paid to detail.

Volunteer workers get together on the day or night before the Bloodmobile visit to make sandwiches for the canteen. This project is carried out in the kitchen at General Hospital—which also donates its space and equipment free of charge.

By late night on the day before the visit, all the sandwiches are made and the canteen—to all practical intent and purposes—is ready to go into operation. When the next morning comes, all that remains to be done is the business of transporting the food to the site of the mobile unit's visit. Once there, it is set up in a separate room (if possible) to await the first donor.

Besides this local work—done by women in their homes, by the Red Cross office and by the canteen workers—a hundred phone calls or visits may also be made by Mikels and representatives of the sponsoring organization.

This month many calls were made between the depot and the Stroudsburg Red Cross office to get material needed and to keep an accurate, running total of the number of donors anticipated at the Depot.

In Wilkes-Barre, headquarters for the area blood bank, preparations have also been made during the past two weeks. Contacts with the depot have been carried out to make certain that proper locations will be available. The mobile unit will leave Wilkes-Barre with its staff of technicians and nurses at 7 a.m. today.

It will arrive at the depot about one hour later. On arrival at the (Please turn to Page 9)

New Air-Cooled Conditioners To Speed Man-Made Weather

Huffman At Craigs Meadow Distributor

A NEW LOW-BUDGET approach to air conditioning has just come into sight for a host of stores, shops and offices as a result of the introduction of "waterless" packaged air conditioners for commercial use.

Air-cooled Carrier Self-Contained Weathermakers from 2 to 7½ horsepower — the industry's first complete line of these waterless conditioners — have just gone on display at Lawton Huffman's Carrier Corporation distributor, Craigs Meadow.

Significance of the new equipment is that many potential commercial users who have been holding back on air conditioning because water problems made it seem too difficult or expensive can now proceed without concern for such problems.

In addition, where water is easy to obtain and dispose of, Carrier provides six models of water-cooled Self-Contained Weathermakers in sizes ranging from 2 to 15 horsepower. The handsome packaged units can be installed without ductwork or located in a closet or storeroom with the conditioned air supplied through ducts.

"One of the big difficulties in providing packaged air conditioning for suites of offices in older buildings has been the problem of inadequate water supply or disposal facilities," Mr. Huffman pointed out.

"When this occurred, it was formerly necessary either to install new piping, to run piping to a cooling tower on the roof which might be many floors above, or to take up some of the rented space for a cooling tower installed indoors — all of them expensive alternatives."

"With the new air-cooled Carriers, which require no water at all, we can simply place a small, air-cooled condenser on a roof set-back or parapet, or even locate it inside in a storeroom with ducts for outside air, and thus eliminate water piping altogether," Mr. Huffman said.

In the case of supermarkets and other low-roofed establishments the condenser can be placed on the roof itself.

Public Opinion Brings About POW Releases

By J. M. Roberts
Associated Press News Analyst

The United States cannot afford a wave of optimism regarding future relations with Red China just because of the imminent release of four American fliers who should have been sent home long ago.

There are dozens of angles to be considered in attempting to relate the action to Communist policy.

For one thing, there is one ominous note in the Chinese broadcast. It said all the men had "admitted their crimes and expressed remorse."

If the men come out "brain-washed," spouting words of goodwill about their captors, as some other Americans have recently, then it will represent merely another chapter in an old story, and international resentments will be heightened rather than relaxed.

This, in the light of recent international Communist activities, should not be the case. The release fits better into the sweetness Russians have been conducting and in which the Chinese Reds joined through Chou En-lai's actions at Bandung. They are working hard on the minds of Asiatic peoples.

Another noteworthy thing is that the men being released are not the ones over whom the world became so excited last fall, when Peiping announced conviction and imprisonment of 11 B29 crew force employees as spies.

Grange Seeks To Control Public Dumping Of Trash

DISGUSTED with the public use of country roads and lands as a dumping grounds for rubbish and garbage, the Cherry Valley Grange at its meeting recently had a lengthy discussion on the subject.

Growing out of the discussion was a decision to investigate means of combating the ugly and defacing habit. Suggested remedies were proper, effective, and enforced legislation, erection of signs prohibiting dumping along roads, providing places for people to dispose of rubbish, and education through newspaper and radio advertisement. The subject will be continued at the Grange's next meeting.

The date for the Grange's strawberry festival was set for Friday night, June 24. The Home Economics Committee will be in charge.

"Banning the word comrade would do more for communism than strengthening of American unity against it. Certainly there is no logical or patriotic reason for yielding to the enemies of democracy even to that extent."

"Let us be proud of our comradeship," Christine concluded. "Let us condemn forever their comradeship and all that it means."

Earlier Ceremony

Christine's address was the spoken climax to a two-hour series of miniature ceremonies performed in the name and memory of American war dead.

The observance began with a brief, simple service by veterans at the American Legion Monument on Washington St. in East Stroudsburg. There a wreath was placed at the base of the monument, a salute was fired and a prayer was given by Rev. Francis Barrett, St. Matthew's Catholic Church. This was at 8 yesterday morning.

A half-hour later members of the same veterans' organizations gathered at the Doughboy Monument in Stroudsburg's Court House Square. A similar ceremony was performed here.

The simple, lonely sounds of "Taps" echoed through the square at 8:40. On Ann St., to the rear of the new YMCA building, the parade groups were forming. Their units moved out onto Main St. at 9 a.m. and marched down Main to Seventh St. where the parade paused for a second memorial tribute to the war dead, symbolized by the Doughboy statue.

The parade then moved to the State Bridge, where flower petals were dropped to the water beneath in tribute to the Naval dead of past wars. The line of march continued down Washington St. in East Stroudsburg then on to Prospect Cemetery.

Stand In Silence

In the cemetery, at the grave of Strunk, the parade halted. As men and women of the community stood in silence, the official Memorial Day program was carried out.

Leo Arterman served as master of ceremonies. An invocation was given by Rev. Frank Wingerter, pastor of East Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church. The East Stroudsburg High School Band, directed by Clement Wiedmeyer, played "America."

Arterman first introduced guests in the crowd, then Christine, whose address was the keynote of the ceremony. A firing squad from Company G took part in the ceremony. Colors were presented with the bearers massed around the grave. The Legion Drum and Bugle Corps sounded taps.

The service closed with the playing of the National Anthem by the East Stroudsburg High School Band.

Chestnuthill High School Awards Diplomas To 14 At Commencement Exercises

BROOKHAVEN—Chestnuthill's 1955 senior class received diplomas Friday night in a traditionally colorful ceremony marked by student addresses, music and a guest speaker.

Marion Howell, in her valedictory titled "The Right Foundation," pointed out that "unless we have a spiritual foundation" all that we do will be valueless.

The spirit is the stone upon which Man's achievements must be based, Miss Howell told her audience. She cited the statement by Albert Einstein, late physicist and theoretical mathematician, in which Einstein said that if he were allowed to live his life over again he would try to be a plumber or peddler and achieve more contentment in living.

In such a way, Miss Howell said, the great men of each time learn the lesson of spiritual need and of the necessity for peace.

Salutatory Address

Jeanette Saxe, the salutatorian, talked on the unseen opportunities which may lie just ahead in the fields of science for this generation. Miss Saxe noted that thousands of jobs are available today for high school graduates which did not exist 50 years ago. Present scientific inventions and improvements will make more jobs and more things possible as time goes on, Miss Saxe said.

The guest speaker was Dr. LeRoy J. Koehler, head of the Social Studies Department at State Teachers College in East Stroudsburg. Dr. Koehler discussed "National Security."

Ervin Kreger, a member of the board of education, presented diplomas to the following graduates, each of whom was introduced by their principal, John C. Mills:

Margaret Marie Altomere, Richard Carl Bizovsky, Ann Marie Dorshimer, Miss Howell, Marion Bertha Koehler, Richard LeRoy Kreger, Myrl Edward Pysker, Miss Saxe, Gail Louise Schaffer, Marie Elizabeth Schultz, Arlene Mildred Serfass, James Bruce Sobers, Ford Berne Warner and Jean May Werkheiser.

"Close Shaves" Are Closer Than You Think

Every once in awhile every auto driver has what he calls a "close shave." These near-accidents are reminders that complete insurance coverage is mighty handy to have.

Why not get the facts about thorough auto insurance coverage—the kind that fully protects you should a "Close Shave" be too close. Just call Stroudsburg 2810 or see C. H. Crowe Company, Inc. at 169 Washington St. —Adv.

Bloodmobile Visit Means Much Work

site for its visit, the mobile unit—with its nine nurses and two custodians—will begin setting up the equipment. It will be ready for the first donor at about 8:45 a.m.

At the depot, four men will be asked to help unload the beds and other equipment which are a permanent part of the mobile unit. These same men—or others on a different shift—will be asked to reload the unit when the visit is over.

In Stroudsburg, the last-minute operation will be one of loading food, fruit juice and ground coffee into the car for transportation to the depot. Workers who are traveling up for the blood bank will be taken in cars provided by Mikels and other Red Cross representatives.

The local workers will leave the Stroudsburg Red Cross office at 8 a.m.

Personnel On Duty

By the time the first donor is ready to go through the line at the bloodmobile unit, all the local personnel will be on hand, ready to do their jobs. Some of them will fill out registration cards, taking names and addresses of donors. Others will be assisting the nurses in the process of taking blood.

The canteen workers will be waiting, complete with a genuine and grateful smile, for the donors to arrive for their sandwiches and coffee. All along the line, the spirit will be cooperative and lighthearted.

No one—and especially the donor—will be able to detect the fatigue that comes with hours of solid work on a single project like the blood bank.

No one will really know how much hard work has gone into it—except the volunteers. And they won't say a word about it. It's all a part of their contribution—month after month—to a cause they consider invaluable to the community in which they live.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

The social page moved into June several days ahead of time with wedding bells ringing out through both the towns and roses blooming all over the place.

Very special weddings they were, too, judging by how quiet the telephone was yesterday, most of the women must have been to at least one of the four weddings and were quite content to spend the holiday resting up.

Speaking of the wedding gowns, Mary Ellen Henning's was made by her mother, and a beautiful thing it is, too. In fact, everyone was talking about the hats at the wedding, too. The attendants really had to practice walking with those picture hats all loaded with roses and lemon leaves, and Mrs. Henning's hat was the envy of all the matrons.

It makes a pretty page, don't you think? Four weddings and all of them different in style. The only trouble is, there's no room left for my Memorial Day column.

Just as well, however, because it's going to be hard enough to get back into routine without lingering over the past. Final exams begin for the high school students of the borough and the sunburns they acquired after the parade isn't going to help any.

The thing that will help their elders is that this is going to be a short week, hurrah.

Miss Henning Is Bride Of Dale T. Poe

Miss Mary Ellen Henning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor J. Henning of 19 North Tenth St., Stroudsburg, became the bride of Dale Thomas Poe, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Poe of 359 North Seventh St., Lehigh, in one of the season's biggest weddings on Saturday afternoon at 3 at St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Stroudsburg.

Rev. P. N. Wohlson performed the double ring ceremony in a church filled with many friends. Altar bouquets of white carnations and pinocchio roses, chancel baskets filled with white carnations and white stock, and pews decorated with white satin ribbons and white carnations formed the background for the wedding party, colorful in shrimp and turquoise and white.

Vernon C. Imbt was organist, and in addition to the traditional wedding music played "None but the Lonely Heart," Tchaikowsky; "Venetian Love Song," Ethelbert Nevin; and "To a Wild Rose," MacDowell. Mrs. Frances Hartzell Meredith was soloist. Her solos included "Through the Years," "Because" and Malotte's "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white crystaletta over white faille. The bodice, apron and back panel of the skirt were of white embroidered nylon tulle, edged with lace. The tiny mandarin collar and long pointed sleeves were also edged in lace, and the skirt ended in a brief brush train. Her veil of imported French illusion was edged with matching lace, and fell from a cap of white crystaletta. Her cascade bouquet was of white carnations and blue delphinium.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Richard Shook, of Stroudsburg, sister of the bride, wore a gown of shrimp crystaletta over faille in a street length. The low neckline was filled with draped crystaletta which continued to form off-the-shoulder sleeves.

The bridesmaids: Miss Mary Ann Eckle, Saylorsburg; Mrs. E. A. Poe Jr., Philadelphia; and Miss Ruth Paul, Plymouth, wore similar gowns in turquoise crystaletta over faille. All of them wore matching picture hats to match their gowns, with the wide brims covered with lemon leaves and pinocchio roses. They wore matching shoes and white gloves. Their cascade bouquets were of pinocchio roses and white carnations.

The flower girls: Miss Margaret Henning, niece of the bride, and Miss Jill Moffitt, niece of the bridegroom, were dressed in gowns of white crystaletta over turquoise faille with nylon ruchings similar to the bridesmaids. They wore head bands of crystaletta and white nylon ruchings with clusters of pinocchio roses at the sides, white gloves and white shoes and small cascade bouquets of white carnations and pinocchio roses.

E. A. Poe Jr., brother of the bridegroom, of Philadelphia, was best man and the ushers were Arthur C. Henning of Stroudsburg, Joseph Moffitt of Lehigh, and William C. Wilt, of Allentown.

The bride's mother wore a light blue imported re-embroidered lace in a street length, with a blue milan straw trimmed with nylon tulle and blue roses, with matching shoes and bag in blue lizard, white gloves and a corsage of pink roses.

The bridegroom's mother wore a street-length dress of grey lace with a shawl collar of gray tulle. She wore a pink flowered hat, pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 150 guests was held at the Bartonsville Hotel. The four tiers of the wedding cake were supported by colonades, and the whole was topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom. Each table was set with bud vases of roses and baby iris. Music for the dancing was furnished by Sonny Earl and his orchestra.

For her wedding trip the bride wore a navy blue dress and jacket ensemble of orlon and cotton, with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations with red tips.

A graduate of Stroudsburg High School in 1951, the bride was graduated from Bloomsburg State Teachers College in 1955 with a degree in business administration. The bridegroom was graduated from Lehigh Valley High School in 1949, and from Drexel Institute of Technology in 1954, and majored in business administration. He is now serving in the U. S. Armed Forces.

Miss Patricia A. Walton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Walton of 532 North Courtland Street, was married on Saturday night at 7 in the parsonage of the East Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church, to Francis E. Doleiden Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Doleiden, 23 South Eighth St., Stroudsburg.

Rev. Frank Wingerter performed the ceremony. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a powder blue street-length dress with white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

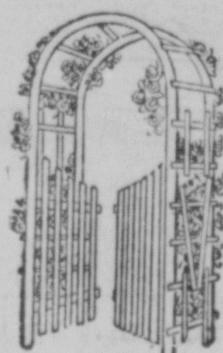

Mrs. Carolyn Cather, of Shamokin, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. She wore a beige street-length dress with pink accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Charles Cather, of Shamokin, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was the best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception for the members of both families was held at the home of the bride.

Zion Aid Society Gives $50 To Cemetery Fund

The Ladies Aid Society of the Middle Smithfield Zion Lutheran Church closed their meeting schedule with a busy session last Thursday in an all-day meeting. They completed their Spring house cleaning in both the church and the Ladies Aid Hall.

After it was finished they had a business meeting, when all officers were re-elected for the coming year and complimented on the work accomplished during the past year. During the winter they have completed a number of quilts, and done a lot of handwork to be sold at the August Bazaar. Mrs. Laura DePue was elected president; Mrs. Lena Michael, treasurer; and Mrs. Bertha Kautz, secretary.

The group voted to give $50 toward the new road now under construction around the cemetery. They planned a bake sale for Friday, June 24, at Wyckoff's for the further benefit of the cemetery fund.

The group also planned for their part in the annual Homecoming on June 19 at the church. The bazaar was set for Friday, August 5, with Saturday, August 6, as a rain date. Proceeds from the bazaar will be used for a new floor covering for the vestibule of the church.

Present for the meeting were Laura DePue, Lena Michael, Edith Michael, Ella Treible, Carrie Dimmick, Helen Treible, Maggie Kemminour, Augusta Voss and Bertha Kautz.

The bride had been employed in the office of the Line Material Co. in East Stroudsburg. The bridegroom is employed at the Thomas P. Brennan & Son Trucking and Rigging Co. in Jersey City. The newlyweds will make their home at 26 W. 42nd St., Bayonne, N. J.

Surprise visitors to the office last Saturday were Artist and Mrs. Sterling Strauser, who returned the vase in which the Ladies' Home Journal bouquet was recently presented. It was pleasant to see them—and the vase came in handy too when my cousin arrived yesterday afternoon with a bouquet of beautiful white peonies.

I don't know about you... but if you are like me you never buy a vase and never have anything adequate in the house when someone does remember you with flowers. At least one of our customers has the same viewpoint, for on Saturday, when I approached her in the gift department, she said she was shopping for a group of children who wanted something for their teacher that "she probably wouldn't buy for herself—something like a vase, perhaps."

I discovered then that we have some beauties in our store, and they're not particularly expensive either. Several tall urn styles in pottery, lined with a deeper color, sell for $4.50 and would be wonderful for the long stemmed flowers now. Then, of course, there are numerous styles in crackle glass, my favorites being aqua and a deep emerald green. Crackle glass is, I think, one of the loveliest wares one can use in summer—something about it always reminds me of mountain streams... a patio and long drinks of something refreshing... and cracked ice. Which, I presume, is just what the manufacturer had in mind.

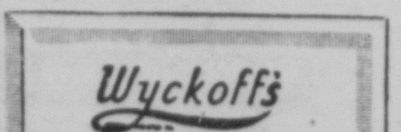

"Wisdom for Today" and "Faith for Today" are the basis of two new styles of greeting cards now offered in our stationery department at 1.50 a box. If you heard the Wyckoff Memorial Day broadcast yesterday at 9:45 you have already become acquainted with them, for they seemed a perfect answer to "What will I talk about on the holiday?"

Yesterdays' talk was based on the words of A. J. Cronin and Dorothy Canfield discussing certain philosophies of Charles Dickens and Edmund Blake. I also read a Berton Braley poem from the well written and meaningful stories.

The cards are beautifully designed and carry a simple message such as "Thinking About You." But there is space to write an additional note if one is desired.

Not every recipient would appreciate one, for they do tend to be serious and, some persons might even call them "preachy." But to the person who has been confined by illness for a long period... to one who has suffered disaster and is seeking an answer... to those who are admittedly groping in the dark for a new viewpoint, they would be far more precious than any get well or sympathy card to be found elsewhere on our racks.

With the arrival of these new cards of wisdom, we at Wyckoff's can truly boast that we have the proper greeting for every occasion. Read this for yourself, and you'll agree.

Soroptimists Hear Talk By Dr. Hennard

Members of the Soroptimist Club had a chance to compare their lives with those women in the Near East at their meeting last week at the Penn-Stroud Hotel when Dr. Georges Hennard, of Switzerland, now at the General Hospital, was their guest speaker.

Dr. Hennard has traveled widely through the Middle East. A graduate of the Medical Faculty of Medicine at the University of Lausanne and with graduate work in Paris, Dr. Hennard in 1949 and 1950 was in the Middle East on commission of the United Nations relief for Arab Refugees from Palestine. He also worked on Tuberculosis Campaign in Denmark and in South America and Ecuador for the World Health Organization.

The women of the Near East, he said, are neglected quantities. Not only are their faces veiled, but they never walk with their husbands but several paces in front. When the husband rides, the woman walks behind. A man never educates a daughter, whom he seeks to marry off at 14 or 15. Women have no social life outside the home.

THE WISTFUL HUNCH

plays by ear and lets his mind take a holiday

The HUNCH is a manufacturer who says advertising is an art — so why try to be scientific about it?

He bets on horses by the sound of their names, draws to inside straights, and always uses a putter when driving off a tee.

He's an amateur's amateur.

Fortunately, the HUNCH is a rare creature. Most advertisers realize that there is a degree of science in all human endeavors — and advertising is no exception.

Most manufacturers carefully weigh their markets and advertise accordingly. They watch their competition closely — and throw in shock troops when sales are threatened. They time campaigns to meet seasonal opportunities. They saturate markets to gain sales supremacy.

Naturally, they use newspapers. Because with newspapers they can pin-point any market, really cover any market. More so now than ever before... because U. S. daily newspaper circulation is highest in history — 55,072,480.

Their national advertising starts at the local level — in newspapers!

All business is local...and so are all newspapers!

Strouds Capture Two Weekend Nods

Stretch Win Streak To Four Straight

A BRILLIANT pitching demonstration by Manager Frank Radler and some timely hitting enabled the Strouds to stretch their winning streak to four straight with a pair of Bi-State League victories during the past weekend. The Strouds haven't tasted defeat in league competition to date.

The Strouds gave a free swinging demonstration on Sunday when they banged out 26 hits and came up with a 19-1 verdict over Blairstown, at Gordon Giffels Field. Yesterday the Radlermen were extended to 10 innings before gaining an 11-8 decision over Roseto.

Roseto was undefeated prior to yesterday's outing, at Roseto. Radler notched his second win of the infant season when he worked the full nine innings against Blairstown, giving up only four hits, one of which was a double by Al Kise.

Harold Jacobsen started on the hill for the Strouds yesterday, but the undefeated right hander was driven to cover when John Pez, who tripled with the sacks loaded in the second, Radler came on the scene to strike out the next batter to end the inning at this point.

The Strouds trailed by a 5-0 count when Radler moved into action yesterday, but the spirited Monroe County contingent fought its way back to 5-2 and then 7-4 before deadlocking the count at 8-8 with a two-run outburst in the top of the ninth.

Radler opened the 10th with a walk and went to second on a sacrifice bunt by Ron "Super" Phillips. Paul "Doc" Lim walked and was forced at second by Dave Nevil.

Randy Morris walked to fill the bases. Danny Eppley singled Radler home and Nevil and Eppley tallied on two wild pitches and a throwing error.

On Sunday home runs by Morris and Harold Freeman highlighted the Strouds' attack against Blairstown. John Whitehead drove six runs across the plate against the foe from New Jersey.

Indians Held To One Win By Chisox

CHICAGO, May 30 (P)—The Cleveland Indians, after spraying 16 hits in the first game to pound out a 9-1 victory for Bob Lemon over the Chicago White Sox, today were shut out in the nightcap 5-0 on Billy Pierce's seven-hit, eight-strikeout job.

The little lefty, salvaging a split for the Sox before 40,645 fans, argeest Comiskey Park crowd of the season, helped boost his record to 4-2 by collecting three singles. It ended the Tribe's four-game winning streak.

It added up to Mike Garcia's fifth loss. He has three victories.

The opener was a breeze for Lemon as he beat the Sox with a six-hitter for the third time and completed his first game in six starts for a 7-4 record.

Pocono Lions Rally To Trip Tannersville In Slugfest; Mount Pocono Clips Barrett Lions

POCONO PINES—Pocono Lions protected their undefeated record in the Pocono Little League yesterday with a 12-10 victory over Tannersville, here on the Tobyhanna Township High School field.

While Pocono Lions were downing Tannersville, Barrett Lions were dropping a 12-2 decision to Mount Pocono Rotary. This game was played on Mountainhome's Siglin Field.

Tannersville waged an uphill fight from the first inning and evened the score at 10-10 with a five-run outburst in the fifth, only to have the Lions come on to win with a two-run spurt in the home half of the final frame.

Gerald Keiper and Ralph Dunlap combined to lead the Lions to victory with one home run each. Keiper also tripled.

Carl "Butch" Beseker was the big gun for Tannersville as he enjoyed a perfect four-for-four showing at the plate.

EAST STROUDSBURG High's verdict over Allentown on Friday was the most impressive and most glorifying in the history of baseball at the N. Courtland St. school. Not only did the win give the Cavaliers clear sailing into the District 11 championship playoff, but it gave a little school a decisive victory over Allentown, a feat which gives everyone in the home town a shot of real pleasure.

There are a host of things we could talk about today, in respect to Friday's tussle, but I believe we better bring to light some of the little things that weren't on the surface during the titanic play-off battle. As a starter it might be good to reveal why Dick "Zek" DeLong was allowed only two bases on a ball that carried 330 feet over the left field wall. In pre-game discussions much time was taken with ground rules.

Chief on the discussion list was the fact that balls going into the bleachers to the left of the "football viewing platform" were to be considered doubles, regardless of whether they made the grade by air or on the bounce. Anything to the right of the "football platform" was to be judged a home run if it went into the bleachers. But, at no time was a ball hit over the fence brought into the discussion. So when DeLong powered the ball over the fence in the eighth inning plate umpire Steve Majeran had to make a quick decision and according to pre-game discussion was justified in calling DeLong's blow a double, although the right fielder certainly deserved a homer.

At the beginning of the 1955 season all balls hit into the bleachers at Gordon Giffels Field were ruled doubles. But, Stroudsburg decided to call all balls hit into the bleachers home runs, as long as they made the grade on the fly. The three-time switch in the rules helped add confusion to the situation on Friday. Paul Hoffman did a creditable job of filling in for the absent Jerry "Moore" Zeman at shortstop against the Canaries.

Zeman was sent to the Monroe General Hospital at noon Friday with what was believed to be an attack of appendicitis and a fever of 101. He won't play for the Cavaliers in the final District 11 Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association playoff next Saturday. Hoffman, Helmut Gartner and Bill Summers are all graduates of the first East Stroudsburg Little League. Summers, Bob "Red" Kupiszewski and Bill Pinsky will accompany the East Stroudsburg High senior class to Washington this week and won't practice again until Thursday.

Allentown didn't win the East Penn League championship this season, but was the highest District 11 club in the standings. Reading, of District Three, won the title. Entries in the East Penn Baseball League differ slightly from the basketball circuit of the same name. Allentown were shoulder patches denoting the fact the Canaries won the District 11 diamond title in 1952. East Stroudsburg will be permitted to wear similar patches if they win next Saturday.

Hazleton, St. Clair and Higgins' Township, as of last Friday, were still in the race for northern division honors in District 11. It was good to see so many Stroudsburg High students rooting for East Stroudsburg. Nine inning games in this neck of the woods are a rarity and it seemed strange to see East Stroudsburg fans stand up and stretch during the seventh inning on Friday. The nine inning game was made necessary through Allentown's insistence.

Allentown had only one senior on its squad Friday. The lone fourth year student was Ron Lopezowski the pitcher. Several other seniors had been dropped from the squad earlier in the campaign. Slatington defeated the Canaries earlier in the season, 6-5. Slatington, like Stroudsburg, is a member of the Lehigh Valley League. Summers changed sweat shirts in the fifth inning, after the one worn for the first five frames became water-logged with sweat. Kupiszewski's first hit on Friday came on a slow curve "let up" ball. The Eastburg left fielder timed the pitch perfectly and drove it into center field, almost duplicating a feat pulled against Hellertown last week.

The choice of Gordon Giffels Field was made by East Stroudsburg because the Stroudsburg field was in much better condition than the East Stroudsburg Playground field. Seating and the chance to make a couple of dollars at the gate were secondary reasons for shifting home fields. Herman Snyder, principal of Slatington High, was on hand at Friday's game.

Saylorsburg Defeats Pair Of Holiday Diamond Foes

West End, Barrett Bow To Lakers

CANADENSIS — Saylorsburg, one of the pre-season favorites in the Pocono Mountains Baseball League, lived up to advance billing over the holiday weekend to move into a first place tie in the current standings.

The Lakers banged out a 6-3 nod over Barrett yesterday in Canadensis, while Saylorsburg ran wild for a 14-3 verdict over West End, at Gilbert, on Sunday.

Saylorsburg's two weekend victories brings its present record to five victories and one defeat. The lone loss was inflicted by Lake Harmony in 10 innings.

The Lakers scored five times against West End in the first inning on Sunday and coasted the remainder of the distance behind the nine-hit hurling of Ralph "Peanuts" Moyer, veteran right hander.

Moyer's supporting cast chipped in with 19 safe blows, five of which went for extra bases.

Relief Job
A brilliant relief effort by Gil Overpeck, experienced right handed hurler, saved the day for the Lakers yesterday. Overpeck took over for Bob Bonser in the eighth inning, with one Barrett runner on base, the count two balls and no strikes on Charley Harrison.

Overpeck walked Harrison, but forced Roy Williams to hit into a double play and Lamar Price went down on strikes to end the inning.

Overpeck also worked out of trouble in the ninth after fanning the first two batters. A single and walk put runners on first and second, but Doug Price lined to Jack Newell to end the battle.

Methodists, Lumbermen Top Rivals In Opening Contests

METHODISTS AND CRAMER Lumber Co. opened the East Stroudsburg Little League baseball season with victories in a special doubleheader at the circuit's official field on Saturday afternoon.

A big 10-run spill in the home half of the third inning enabled the Methodists to roll over Heller-Lloyd-Howell in the opening half of the bargain bill, 10-2, while Cramer Lumber outlasted East Blairstown 7-2. The Methodists played perfect ball in the field, while Portland erred on two defensive plays.

Bushkill Falls Before Barrett, 9-8

BUSHKILL—A dropped fly in right field by Dave Fredericks on Sunday enabled Barrett to battle to a 9-8 verdict over Bushkill in a Pocono Mountains Baseball League game played here on the losing club's home field.

The visiting Barrett contingent tallied four times in the ninth frame, with the tying and winning runs crossing the plate on the error in right field.

Flying Start
Bushkill, gunning for its initial victory of the current campaign, got off to a flying start on Sunday with a five-run outburst in the bottom of the first, after Barrett had scored three times in the top of the opening inning.
